MASTER PROGRAMS DESCRIPTION

- The Master in Product Design program combines cross-disciplinary studies of design thinking with hands-on experience. Students have the opportunity to work on projects with companies on the front lines of product design, engineering, and business. They learn how to analyze current industry directions, anticipate future trends, and explore new territories in design, technology, fabrication, and distribution.
- In the Master in Interior and Living Design students collaborate with their international peers and company professionals on projects that re-invent the interior and living domains. With cultural, social, and practical concerns in mind, they examine materials, furniture, lighting, and emerging technologies as you plan new and innovative spaces.
- The Master in Urban Vision & Architectural Design offers new techniques of inquiry into the methods, tools, and topics that define contemporary urban and architectural projects. Students study design-based strategies for transforming cities and regenerating metropolitan areas. Taking factors like the environment, social equity, and economic viability into consideration, they design concepts for private and public spaces and collaborate on projects that define a better urban future.
